

Python commands:

Python (or python3) yourfile.py	Runs your file using python
---------------------------------	-----------------------------

Git commands:

git config user.name "Your Name"	Set your name (once) git config user.email "your email address"	Set your email address (once) git clone <repo-url>	Clone a repo locally git switch -c <your branch>	Create a branch and switch to it git status	See how your git stands git diff	See what's not committed yet git add <yourfile.py>	Add a file to the local branch git commit -m "your comment"	Add a comment to the commit git push -u origin <your branch>	Push your local branch to remote gh pr create	Create a pull request git switch main	Switch to the main branch locally git pull origin main	Sync with the new main git branch -d <your old branch>	Delete unused branch

Bash commands:

ls -a	list all files
ls -l	list in long format (showing permissions) ls -la	list in long format including hidden files ls -s	list file size cd ~	change to home directory cd /	change to root directory cd ..	change to parent directory pwd	print what directory (I am in) history (or uparrow)	last commands typed mkdir	make a folder
rm	remove (stuff)
cat	list the contents of a file head	list the top contents tail	list the bottom contents man ls	get help from the manual on ls grep "wonderful" purple.txt	find text in a file cp	copy a file

DOS commands:

dir	list all files
cd	change directory
uparrow	last commands typed
del	delete (stuff)
md	make a folder
copy	copy a file